Feminist political ecology is a feminist perspective on political ecology, drawing on theories from post-structuralism, feminist geography, and cultural ecology. Feminist political ecology examines the place of intersectional social relations in the political ecological landscape, exploring them as a factor in ecological and political relations. Specific areas in which feminist political ecology is focused are development, landscape, resource use, agrarian reconstruction and rural-urban transfor

Feminist political ecology developed in geography through the 1990s, drawing upon empirical field research in political ecology and a constructivist feminist theory of gender. Feminist political ecology presents a strong critique of the essentialist aspects of ecofeminism for a failure to adequately address both the material and the ideological bases for women's environmental actions, and draws upon the alternative conceptualizations (described above) developing outside the discipline of ...
